In Sugar, the earlier advances gained by the St. Paul showing, and that of minor roads was not entirely cancelled. Interest was revived to a marked extent in a number of the Iron and Steel issues, National Steel moving up two points and receding fractionally. Tennessee Coal fell into comparative duliness, and although it covered a range of 3 points, terminated unchanged. Some comment was excited by a rise of 5 points in General Electric, which was generally attributed to reports of encouraging earnings. Sugar's plunge downward was ascribed to gossip concerning the trade war.

Third Avenue occupied a less conspicuous position in the market than of late and moved in somewhat narrow limits. A tendency to cover in some directions coupled with free seiling in spots, caused a very irregular close to the day's business. New York, Feb. 3.—Speculation in toay's short session of the stock market was swayed by long ventures, encouraged by the statement of the St. Paul level of prices had been early established, which indicated a handsome rise on securities purchased earlier in the week. The tendency to realize was very manifest after the publication of The Cotton Markets.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET. New York, Feb. 3.—The cotton mar-ket opened firm at an advance of 1 to 6 points, and while not showing weakness, ruled irregular during the forepart of the session. March touched Scents soon after the call, but a flood of selling orders carried that option back five points, after which it gradually five points, after which it gradually worked higher again. An evidence desire of the investment public to take profits, not unnatural in view of the sheer rise of %c, per pound since the present bull movement set in, served to restrain the sheer rise of %c. per pound since the present bull movement set in, served to restrain the more enthusiastic room bulls. Considerable difference of opinion existed as to the cause of the sudden rise of 4 to 5 points in the English market this morning. Some cables claimed the advance abroad grew out of another scare of continental shorts, others attributed the rise to firmness of spot cotton in the South, while still other advices hinted at manipulation engineered by prominent New York commission houses. Local parties exhibited dispatches from the belt, which portrayed great strength and fair activity in spot cotton centres. The crop movement was not up to anticipations.

The market for futures closed irregular and casy, with prices net 2 points higher to three points lower, having gone off at the close under a spurt of Wall street realizing.

January 27th to August 31st, 1899, both inclusive, were 4,122,000 bales. From September 1st, 1899, to January 27th, 1990, there had been exported from this countries.

there had been experted from this coun-try nearly 1,990,000 bales less than from September 1st, 1888 to January 27th, 1899. Consequently, to equal the total experts from September 1st, 1885, to August 31st, 1899, there must be experted from this country, from January 27th to August 31st, 1800, 6,000,000 bales of cotton. To show the impossibility of experts of any such quantity, we submit the following: The total visible supply of American in this country on the 27th instant was 1,748,000 bales, and on the same date, the amount marketed of the present crop, according to the Financial Chronicle, had been 6,578,519 bales. Assuming, as we do, that this crop will realize 8,750,009 bales means that the invisible supply in this country was, on the 27th instant, about 2,200,000 bales, which, added to the visible supply, gives a total of both in this country on the 27th instant of about 3,948,600 bales.

The Financial Chronicle of the 27th instant of about 3,948,600 bales.

stant makes Southern consumption to that date since September 1st, 1899, 611,000 bales, and Northern mill takings to same date, 1,582,593 bales, an aggregate of 2,-193,000 bales. The total of Northern spin-ners takings and Southern consumption for all of last season was 3,559,494 bales. Consequently, if this country consumes no more than last season (whereas it will no more than last scason (whereas it will consume 250,000 to 300,000 bales in excess of last season), it means that to equal it 1,396,000 bales will be required between January 27th and August 21st, 1909, for domestic consumption, in addition to 2,193,000 bales, as above, to the 27th in-stant 27then again, there must be carried stant. Then, again, there must be carried over on September 1st next in this country at least 400,000 bales of visible and invisible supply, and, deducting these two amounts from 3,98,999 bales, it shows that there will be left for export, not only to Europe, but to China, Japan, Mexico and Camda, from January 27th to August 31st, 1900, about 2,152,000 bales against exports during the same period last year of 4,129,000 bales.

These figures are startling because of the supply, particularly when taking them in connection with the world'a con-sumption of American cotton, in regard to which we have to say, as follows:
According to the authority on European mill stocks and consumption (Mr. Thomas Ellison) the aggregate amount consumed by English and Continental spinners now 163,000 bules weekly, of all kinds, 500 pounds each. Taking the daily report of the Liverpool market it shows that the proportion of American cotton sold to that of all kinds is about 90 per cent., and, no doubt, the same proportion is true of the daily Continental sules of cotton of all per cent. of European consumplen American cotton and this represents, out of 163,000 bales weekly, about 125,000 bales of American. The weekly consumption of Southern mills, according to the Finan-cial Chrontele and Secretary Hester, is 30,000 bales. The consumption by North-ern mills must certainly be 40,000 bales weekly, or a total of 203,000 bales. To this must be added the consumption of American by China, Japan, Mexico and American by Unita, Japan, alexico and Canada and elsewhere. Assuming that this aggregate is only 6,000 bales week-ly, it gives a total weekly consumption by the world of 215,000 bales of Amer-lean, or 11,180,000 bales per annum.

It can be safely said, however, that the spinning world is to-day consuming, American cotton, an amount per anni of 11,250,000 bales, equal to the larg consumption on record-that of last year when it was largely stimulated by the low price. The world's buying power, however, has increased so materially dur ing the past twelve menths as to show that the higher prices for cotton, instead of lessening consumption, is stimulating the productiveness of the world's cotton manufacturing industries. With a crop this season of even 8,750,000 bales, and adding to it 1,000,000 bales brought over on September 1st, last, of the world's vis-tible supply of American of 1,962,000 bales, would still leave on September 1st, 1900. in oil, pork and pine barrels a deficit between supply and consumption of 1,500,000 bales, but it would also leave the world's visible supply dangerously small, and smaller than on September 1st time the price of middling cotton in New York was 111/2 cents, against 51/4 cents to

Any one can reasonably antic'pate from these statistical conditions, as we have presented them, an advance of great proportions, and, in giving this data as here-in contained, we do so in order to show what has been for a long time past the basis of our bullish views for the staple and which we have continually put forth, in our market letters to the local and Southern press, during the past five
